From Our Readers

"The first few years, Dream Network had several editors, including yours truly, but for the last many, many years, it has been Roberta Ossana, who has done a tremendous job of improving the look and content of that magazine. Today it is THE magazine to refer to for what is happening in today's world of dreams."

*Henry Reed, Ph.D., Mouth of Wilson, VA
(Dreamworker & Former Publisher/Dream Network)*

"I've been trying to discover what to do about my own dreams for many years, because some of them are on the grand scale of prophecies, others are prognostications and still others are very personal dreams. I've had little opportunity to share, compare or learn about this area of my life. I look forward to receiving each issue of Dream Network."

Bonnie B. Jacobson, Rock Hill, S.C.

"I was quite a surprised to find an intelligent publication focused on dreaming. I have always maintained a strong connection to my dream life. I investigated the traditional and progressive dream texts while still in art school. I am thrilled with what I have found in Dream Network! Great good luck with your fine and worthwhile venture."

Scott N. Becker, Highland Park, IL

"I have conducted a seminar each week for men and women on dreams and spiritual growth. I began it with fear and trepidation. I was pleasantly surprised to find most if not all very open to listening to God speaking in their dreams. I just love Dream Network!"

Father Joseph Sedley, C.P. Shrewsbury, MA

Initiated in 1982, the DNJ has served as the ground upon which the foundation for the growing 'Dream Movement' is building, internationally.

Though we aspire to maintain a high level of scholarship, Dream Network is not an academic journal per se and is not affiliated with any academic institution, organization or theoretical disposition; rather, we remain eclectic, autonomous and open to all schools of thought and personal experience. Together, we explore the mystery.

Readers tell us that they treasure Dream Network for years and refer back to their issues time and again. Our back issues continue to sell long after their publication date, insuring that your advertising will continue to work for you for many years.

Our readership to the print and Online publication continues to grow, giving your product or service 'double-exposure.' We are distributed nationally.

Reach this unique audience with your product or service through advertising in Dream Network!
