Dear Dream Friend,

Thank you for valuing your dreams and your interest in Dream Network.

As more of us awaken to the truth and value presented each night in our dreams, it becomes increasingly desirable to better understand dreams' unique and creative language, the language of symbol and metaphor.

With the growing evidence of our longing—and need—to comprehend the necessity of myth, it becomes evermore compelling to understand how we can reclaim the mythic life and re-enchant our world.

For more than 22 years, Dream Network has been published to fulfill these intrinsic human needs. Initiated in 1982, the DNJ has served as the ground upon which the foundation for the growing 'Dream Movement' is building, internationally.

It is our purpose to demystify dreamwork so as to make the meaning of our dreams more readily available to each of us, believing every dream remembered desires to be understood and conveys information that is of value to our good health and overall well-being.

Though we aspire to maintain a high level of scholarship, Dream Network is not an academic journal per se and is not affiliated with any academic institution, organization or theoretical disposition; rather, we remain eclectic, autonomous and open to all schools of thought and personal experience. Together, we explore the mystery.

Our goal is to remain an interactive publication, actively engaging readers and sharing our unique messages with an increasingly interested readership.

Each issue of Dream Network contains sections on The Art of Dream Sharing and Dream Education, the Mythic Dimension and articles which respond to Questions posed in the previous issue.

Our classified section offers DNJ readers the opportunity to network, learn and explore with other dreamers, internationally.

You are openheartedly invited to join us in reintroducing this deeply valuable, cross-cultural, common human experience into our cultures.

Choose to explore the mystery with us!

For Dreams,
